CINCINNATI CONVENTION.

Organization of the Convention.

CINCINNATI June 14—The Republican National Convention met at noon to day in the Exposition building. The attendance was greater than at any previous gathering of the party and embraced some of the most noted men in the Nation. A number of colored delegates were present and their presence [illegible] surprise. Among the [illegible] Congressmen [illegible] and other southern States. The delegates were admirably grouped [illegible] facing the stage. The New York men occupied the left center on their right were New England, their seats fronting in single file, Maine at the head, Rhode Island at the rear with Iowa immediately behind her to the left of New York and fronting the stage was Indiana, behind her the Morton men of Tennessee, Texas and to [illegible] the left again came Kentucky and the Carolinas with Virginia bringing up the rear. The extreme left flank was allotted to Pennsylvania, the right [illegible] lot of Ohio behind which were placed [illegible] merit Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin. The territorial delegates and those from some of the petty states were tucked away in the rear.

As the hour for beginning proceedings drew near the rush grew more and more intense and at a few minutes to 12 M the aisles were jammed.

Speech of Gov. Morgan.

The convention was called to order by Gov E D Morgan, chairman of the Republican National Committee, who introduced the Rev Dr Miller of Covington, Ky, who made a prayer, after which Gov Morgan said:

Gentlemen—I thank you most heartily for the compliment conferred by calling me to preside over the temporary organization of this convention. I had been so long withdrawn from practical participation in political affairs that it is in obedience to custom rather than my own inclination that I occupy even a moment of your time in consideration of the political situation and of the principles so long and so successfully entrusted to the keeping of the Republican party.

Events have chased each other so rapidly from the inauguration of Abraham Lincoln to the closing year of the administration of Gen Grant, fraught with such fundamental changes in the whole theory and practice of government, that the greatest consideration of them in the briefest manner is precluded upon an occasion such as this. Brief as may be considered the existence of the Republican party, none other in the history of the nation has so long a consecutive period controlled its government without encountering popular defeat, and still notwithstanding popular jealousy of political ascendency long continued by any party, it is in the power of this convention to designate the coming President of the United States. [Loud and continued applause.] I am further requested by the National committee to make a nomination for temporary presiding officer of this convention. I therefore nominate the Hon Theo M Pomeroy of New York for that office. The motion was agreed to.

Address of Mr. Pomeroy.

Pomeroy, being introduced, spoke as follows:

Gentlemen of the Convention—The day and the hour have arrived for which the representatives of the Republican party were invited to assemble to nominate candidates for President and Vice President of the United States. In obedience to the authority of the Republican National Convention I now respectfully ask that you will maintain order. In 1856 at Philadelphia, in 1860 at Chicago and in 1864 at Baltimore, acting under the same general authority, it has been my privilege to call Republican conventions to order. If I except the action of the convention of 1864, the duties which this intelligent body has to perform in comparison with former ones are the most important of all. There is no special or parliamentary authority for any remarks from the chair. In the nature of things there can not be any. Custom only is my excuse, if needed, for even a few words. In June 1864, we were in the midst of a war for the preservation of the Union. We had great armies in the field, but they had achieved only partial successes, and when successful always at very great cost of life. The bravest and best of young men had fallen in battle by tens and hundreds of thousands or were in prison at Andersonville and Libby. President Lincoln, seventeen months prior to this, had by proclamation, but only as a war measure, declared the slaves free while their masters kept them within their lines and held full dominion over them. It was then modestly suggested by your chairman of the national committee that the convention would not discharge its whole duty unless among its other resolves it should declare for such amendment of the national constitution as would, when adopted by the requisite number of States, forever prohibit African slavery on this continent. The suggestion was received with unexampled enthusiasm by the convention. The resolution to secure this national blessing was written in your party platform on that day. Both houses of Congress very soon after passed the requisite amendment, and twenty nine sovereign States ratified it. The noble Lincoln proclaimed the result to the people and from that hour to this the sun has not risen upon a bondman nor set upon a slave in all this fair land. Not to the North, not to the South, but to the supreme Being who alone controls the destinies of nations as well as the affairs of individuals, let us give all the glory. But all of this is past and the past we cannot [illegible]. Pardon me, gentlemen, if again with like modesty, I make a suggestion or two bearing directly on the present. This convention should emphatically demand the prompt and efficient execution of those solemn promises of both houses of Congress and the President to redeem in coin the legal tender obligation of the government on the 1st of January 1879, and signify its opposition to any modification or repeal of this law that does not guarantee a still earlier or better method of returning to specie payment. Let no doubtful word go out from this convention upon the subject of honest money. Prices are already at a specie point. Stand firmly by your numerous resolutions and platforms a little longer and your currency basis will be transferred into a coin basis so easily and naturally that you will yourselves be surprised, regretting only as you will that it was not determined on at an earlier day. Resumption accomplished, then in all human probability will follow ten or fifteen years of prosperity equal to that of any former period, perhaps greater than the country has yet seen. If you will in addition put a plank in your platform declaring for such amendment of the Constitution as will extend the Presidential office to six years and make the incumbent ineligible for re-election, you will deserve the gratitude of the American people. The last three National Conventions of your party have had indicated to them in advance the names of candidates for national offices, and have been little else than ratification meetings of decrees that have been made by the people, merely putting in form that which has already been decided upon. I allude to President Lincoln's second nomination and to the nomination and renomination of the splendid soldier and patriot Gen Grant. Such a state of things no longer exists. There appears to be at the present time no one whom the unerring finger points as the only candidate. There seems to be no man rising so far above all others as to cause exultant voices to exclaim "Thou art the man." The consequence is many distinguished names among our party friends have been mentioned as candidates and will be brought before the Convention when the proper time arrives for making nominations. Therefore it is that I have expressed myself, seeing greater responsibility resting upon this convention than any or all that have preceded it. The history of the Republican party furnishes abundant evidence of its desire that the government shall be administered with honesty and economy, and as a means to that end that civil service should be elevated by the introduction of all needful and proper reforms. With such a history and at a time like the present it cannot be doubted that the choice of the convention will fall on some one who ever he may be clearly committed on this question, not only by his expressed opinion but also by his public life and conduct. I will not further anticipate the action of this honorable body except to say that the firm support on the part of the nominees of all the recent amendments to the national constitution and the support and maintenance of all other principles involved in the war and the [illegible] of the Union must also be regarded as the prerequisites for the high offices of President and Vice President of the United States. With this accomplished it will be the highest duty and should be the greatest pleasure for all in authority to extend a warm hand of fellowship to all good citizens of this Union, and as rapidly as possible to forget and forgive the [illegible] past, and to do every act to make us satisfied to be and remain in fact as we are in name one people and one country. We are not here as contending factions within the party to test under various leaderships our relative strength as representatives, accepting the high responsibility [illegible] from the [illegible] of conflicting opinions that type of American statesmanship which shall be accepted as the worthy embodiment of the principles of the party. Men as well as measures are to be weighed in the balance during the coming months, and neither must be found wanting. [illegible] success the Republican party cannot continue to live by reason of its splendid achievements in the past, nor the Democratic party expect to be returned to power upon its glittering promises of reform in the future. The former party must [illegible] present men representative of its principles [illegible] In former days when party ties were firmer [illegible] calamities [illegible] compelled party [illegible] Party ties are [illegible] now, and no past [illegible] [illegible] We are told that it has accomplished its mission, and that therefore it has no claim [illegible] [illegible] its mission at its birth in neutral [illegible] the disastrous effect of the repeal of the Missouri compromise in saving the freedom of the great Territory of the Northwest and bringing California into the sisterhood of States undefiled by slavery and adorned like a bride in the glitter of her golden adornments, and to correct the imbecility of the Democratic administration [illegible]

[illegible]

In regard to the payment of the principal of the public debt incurred in the prosecution of the war to overthrow the rebellion, for the purpose of securing ready money to pay the army and navy and to provide the immense materiel of war, it became necessary to suspend specie payment and to make a loan from the people by declaring greenbacks a legal tender in payment of public and private indebtedness, yet while claiming to be in favor of resumption of specie payment at some indefinite time and by means of some indefinite process, although years have elapsed since the close of the war, it bitterly opposes the payment of the former loan or the taking of practical steps towards assuming its position among the several nations of the civilized world. The late civil war was not for prize but for material supremacy. It was the outgrowth of a conflict of irreconcilable moral, social and political forces. The Democracy had its lot with the moral, social and political forces of the cause which was lost. The Republican party with those of that which triumphed and survived. The preservation of the results of that victory devolves upon us here and now. The Democracy has no tradition of the past, no impulse of the present, no aspirations for the future fitting for this task. The present House of Representatives has succeeded in nothing except a development of its own inability. From the inception of the Republican party in 1856 it has kept pace with the progress of the times, accepting each added responsibility of the war, emancipation, taxation and reconstruction, until the greatest pages of American history are but the history of the Republican party. [Applause.] It hesitated, but it has never feared to act, and the high heart of the nation has lived. There has been corruption, but when it was discovered the order went forth "Let no guilty man escape." [Loud applause.] And gentlemen, that order has been executed. There has been no want of harmony. In a platform unwavering in its declaration of principles, with candidates worthy of the platform, will weld together as of old into an uncorrupt army of the great liberty loving, law abiding majority of voters of this nation, and secure with enduring prestige the result of the deliberations of this convention. Thanking you, gentlemen, I inquire what is the pleasure of the convention.

By request of the Michigan delegation the name of Gen F A Hinkles was proposed as sergeant at arms of the Convention, and he was unanimously elected.

Dr Loring of Massachusetts moved that the roll of States and Territories be called and that the chairman of each delegation announce the names of the persons selected to serve on the following committees: 1 credentials, 2 permanent organization, 3 rules and order of business, 4 resolutions. The motion carried.

Dutch of New York—Does that include the Territories?

The Chairman—No sir, it does not.

Dutch—I move a reconsideration of the vote.

The gentleman from Pennsylvania moved to lay the motion on the table. Carried.

The Chair—The secretary will call the roll of States for presentation of names for the committees on credentials.

A delegate from Indiana moved that as the roll was called each delegation could nominate the members of all committees. Carried.

In order to simplify and to get rid of ridiculous errors made in writing down indistinctly heard names, the chairmen of the different delegations were allowed to hand their committeemen in writing to be subsequently read by the secretary. It was nearly 1:30 before the tedious task of collecting statistical information was over, then the secretary read the list of the various committees. Upon the withdrawal of the committees the delegates took the opportunity to move around and discuss the situation.

While the committees were absent a delegate from Maryland made the following motion: As none of the committees are ready to report I move the convention take a recess until 4 o'clock. The question was put but the motion not agreed to.

Speech of Gen. Logan.

There were loud calls for Gen Logan, who had taken his seat on the stage. On being introduced by the presiding officer he said:

Mr President and Gentlemen of the National Convention—You are the chosen representatives of the Republicans of the United States assembled here for the purpose of nominating candidates for President and Vice President upon a Republican platform, to be voted for at the next November election by the Republicans of the United States. It is not for me to indicate at what hour the committee shall report or what you shall adopt, except to say as a Republican let there be no uncertain sound on any question that is a vital question before the American people. [Cheers.] This is a Republican convention and it should only be captured by Republicans and supported and sustained only by Republicans. I have learned while being a Republican that Republicanism in this land means liberty, freedom, the enjoyment of happiness and protection under our laws alike to each and every citizen in the confines of the country, let him come from where he may. Will you tell me we have power to protect the American citizen on high seas or in foreign lands?

The way to protect American citizens in their rights and the enjoyment in that which they are entitled to under our constitution is to force the lawmakers to make such laws as will throw a safeguard around each and every one of them. Place in the Presidential chair the man that will execute these laws for the benefit and protection of every citizen of the country. The man who tells me four millions of unfortunate men of our people who have been made freemen in this land by the force of the strong arm and the Republicans and Union men of this land shall not have their rights and be protected the same as we, tells of something which must not happen. Look at the enemies of the Republican party in this land—do they sing the praise of quiet acquiescence in the law of the land, or do they come forward among the enemies of civilization, of republicanism and of freedom and say "Here we stand with the banner of freedom in our hands and we intend to wave it over this land and sustain all that in fact is civilization"? The destruction of the government is contemplated, not by arms, not by force, but by capturing the government and then nullifying the law and every amendment to the constitution that gives that protection to our citizens that we ourselves enjoy. He said they could have when we were battling to preserve the Union the men that would stand firm and boldly and vindicate the right of the people and the principles of Republicanism. No matter who they are or where they may live is immaterial. The Republican party should uphold these men so far as they deserve being sustained. On the conclusion of Logan's speech there were loud calls for General Hawley of Connecticut. He came to the front and said:

Speech of Gen. Hawley.

Mr President and Gentlemen of the Convention—I am exceedingly sorry that I am [illegible] to address you so will say but one word and leave you. I wish to believe, as my gallant and eloquent friend has said, that the Republican party has but to nominate [illegible] I should be [illegible] it expressed [illegible] longing, as any sanguine temperament could desire, but I am not so sure that it is precisely so. There has been growing for some time in the country a widespread and serious demand for independent action. It is simple common sense to recognize it. [illegible] No wise [illegible] with [illegible] recognizing the power of his enemies. He is well [illegible] his way to victory when he has done that. Now, gentlemen, when you shall have nominated your candidates and [illegible] your platform [illegible] public doctrines and [illegible] honorable, true Republican [illegible] I shall go to work with all my heart and strength to elect him. But now is the time [illegible] in which to determine what you will do [illegible] It is the high duty of the Republican party to take clear, strong and [illegible] ground [illegible] [illegible] carry on war. Everybody knows that [illegible] [illegible] pay every dollar of debt according to the terms of your promise, that you will return to sound currency based upon economical laws which have been acknowledged by wise men since the science of money began to be [illegible]. That is the [illegible] We hear much said at times about the great puzzle, problems [illegible] difficulties [illegible] I have a very simple test. Tell the truth [illegible] What did you borrow? [illegible] What did you promise when it was issued? Do it. There is no mystery in it [illegible] the highest test of our many high duties to bring back our currency to a sound basis and to resume specie payment, and it is not alone as a question of the honor and integrity of the nation but as our chief hope pointing to the return of business prosperity. Our business men are now utterly unable to calculate [illegible] the future [illegible] may [illegible] upon their several campaigns, and I can say to you also that there is profound anxiety throughout the whole Republican party that we shall give new assurances to the country that all its offices are to be administered with high honor and integrity, and that the sacred trusts of the office holders of this country are indeed sacred trusts not to be trifled with by corrupt and designing men. I do not in any sense despair of our Republic or the Republican party. The great mass of our people have in their minds their fidelity to every beautiful, every noble high idea. They have been uplifted under the providence of God within these fifteen years to see new glory in the institution, new glory in that flag, and when the sanguine and hopeful and honorable young men see men in high office trifling with those noble duties, trading offices, giving them to unworthy men for personal partisan movements, when they see men in office winking at corruption and trading with their power, disgust would ensue, and the fact had better be recognized in this convention. Gen Hawley concluded his speech with this and retired followed by a handsome round of applause.

Other Addresses.

Ex Gov Noyes of Ohio was called out and stated that much was expected of the Republican party at the present time. The honest men of the Republican party could not be destroyed by designing enemies. The Republican party, after sixteen years service, challenged criticism; slavery had been abolished; foreign born citizens had been accorded the same political rights which any one enjoyed; every man has been protected in rights of property or person, whether white or black. White and black soldiers died side by side on the battle fields of the South, and they should not forget the services rendered by the colored race. They should have honest men in the party, and all others they should drive into another party where they belong. All that the Republicans of Ohio asked of the convention was that they should nominate honest men for President and Vice President of the United States, the purification of the government, and begged that the convention would put a plank in the platform assuring safety to colored men of the South. Mr Noyes was indiscreet enough to refer in terms of reprobation to the managers of the Freedmen's Bank, to the confusion of a large share of the convention and infinite amusement of the rest.

Hon W A Howard of Michigan was the next man to get the floor. This gentleman is lame and had to sit while speaking. During his address numbers of delegates left the hall. Symptoms of breaking up supervened. When he finished a Michigan delegate moved to adjourn, which was voted down.

Speech of Fred Douglass.

Fred Douglass was introduced as a man who needed no introduction. It was the first time in his history, he said, that he had enjoyed the pleasure of looking the Republican party squarely in the face. He hoped he would be acquitted of any desire to flatter when he said the Republican party was composed of pretty good looking men. He believed the principles involved in the war of the rebellion still existed; but he would ask what the enfranchisement of slaves meant if the blacks had been freed from slaveholders at last only to fall before the shotgun? When the Russian serfs were freed the government of Russia gave them each some means of subsistence; when the American slaves were freed they were turned loose upon the mercies of the late masters. He did not care to hear talk of finance, he wanted to hear them say, if necessary, the black man should be permitted to go to the polls in the South even had he to bring a bayonet behind him. His speech was frequently applauded, the heartiest being from McMichael of Philadelphia. A strong Blaine man is to be permanent chairman. Eugene Hale on the floor of the Convention has just received the following:

WASHINGTON June 14, 12:55 P M—I have just left Blaine. He has fully recovered every faculty, is perfectly sound and is only a little weak as a result of his attack. (Signed) George M Robeson, Secretary of the Navy.

Report of Committee on Organization.

Loring of Massachusetts then came forward and read the following report of the committee on organization: President, Elwood from New York. Vice Presidents—Alabama, M W Gibbs; California, George T Evans; Colorado, Henry McAllister; Connecticut, Martin J Sheldon; Delaware, David W Moore; Georgia, R L Mathews, John Trinaker; Indiana, Jas I Fraser; Iowa, W I Shar; Kansas, William Martin Dale; Kentucky, F K Weer; Louisiana, Geo T Kelso; Maine, J B Brown; Maryland, Jas A Gary; Massachusetts, A A Chadbourne; Michigan, Henry H Baldwin; Minnesota, L Boyer; Mississippi, W Eharne; Missouri, C A Finkelenburg; Nebraska, H T Kaley; Nevada, Thos Wein; New Hampshire, L A Straw; New Jersey, Wm A Newell; New York, Marshall O Brooks; North Carolina, Jas H Harris; Ohio, Benj F Wade; Oregon, J H Foster; Pennsylvania, J Smith Futtey; Rhode Island, Henry Howard; South Carolina, A H Glevesten; Horace H Harrison; Texas, A Burton; Vermont, F R Howe; Virginia, R H Carter; West Virginia, W C Stevenson; Wisconsin, Jas Bentliff; Arizona, D forest Porter; Dakota, Alex Hughes; District of Columbia, [illegible]; Idaho, Austin Savage; Montana, Benj H Tatem; New Mexico, Saul Baxtell; Utah, Jas B McKenry; Washington, Elwood Evans; Wyoming, Wm Hington. Principal secretary, J M Bean of Wisconsin, and one assistant from each State.

The committee further reported that they had submitted no names for vice president or secretary from Alabama and other States where there was a contest. After the report of the committee on credentials these vacancies could easily be filled.

A member from Arkansas insisted that the report should not be adopted until the report of the committee on credentials had been read. He moved to lay the report temporarily on the table.

Loring, chairman of the committee, desired to state that this question was discussed in the committee, and on turning to the report of the convention at Philadelphia in 1872 it was found that the committee on credentials reported after the permanent organization of the convention, and it was on that account that this report has been made, feeling that the convention had the perfect right to accept it or not as they pleased, and that provision had been made for the contesting delegations by the report of the committee.

Mason of New York moved that the report be adopted, so far as it related to States where there there was no contest. Ruled out of order.

A delegate from Maryland moved to lay McClurg's motion on the table. The motion was agreed to.

The delegates from Arkansas insisted that the motion carried the subject matter along with it, but the Chair overruled the point, stating that the Convention had adopted no rules but made them up as it went along. The report was adopted.

There were momentary calls for other speakers and motions to adjourn.

The Chair—The first business now in order, the only business, is to surrender the chair to the permanent chairman named by the committee on organization. The Chair therefore names Messrs Orton of New York, Browning of Iowa and McCormick of Arizona as a committee to conduct the permanent chairman to the platform. McPherson came forward accompanied by the escort and was greeted with cheers. The retiring chairman said: I take pleasure in introducing to you your permanent President, the Hon Edw McPherson.

The Chairman's Address.

The Chairman—Gentlemen of the Convention: No one of you know better than myself how entirely unworthy I am of this high honor. It has come to me not only unsought but with a feeling of absolute and [illegible] surprise. But I have been reared in the school of duty and in the field of Pennsylvania. It is a fundamental doctrine that every Republican shall do his whole duty [applause], and therefore I am here to accept this honor tendered by your committee and ratified by yourselves as an honor tendered to the great old commonwealth which has sent me as one of its delegates to this convention. Since 1856 in none of the great contests has she ever faltered, and in this centennial convention she is still returned an inflexible defiant foe to the enemy. She says no truce with treason, malignity and everything that is not national. She has determined to roll up for the nominees of this convention a majority as will entitle her to continue to be what she has long been, and I say it with all respect, foremost in the Republican cause. The chair is ready for business.

The president announced that the committee on rules would meet at 6 o'clock at the Gibson House, and that they expected to make a report in the morning. The President also suggested the appointment of a member of the committee on resolutions to take the place vacated by his elevation to the chair. Wm I Mann was selected.

On motion of [illegible] the convention adjourned until 10 to morrow morning.

Nevada, C N Harris, Frank Bell, J H Jeffries, R S Hamp. Oregon, J B David, H K Hines, J H Foster. Washington Territory, T T Miner, Elwood Evans.

General Remarks.

The proceedings of the convention were marked by that harmony and good nature which generally distinguishes the preliminary sessions of any political organization. Everybody was pleasant and no apparent symptoms of the intense eagerness with which everybody is looking forward to the business of to morrow. The closing hours of the convention were occupied by speeches by Senator Logan and others. Their tone was about the same, the only exception being in the remarks of Gov Noyes, who referred to the aspirations of the younger men of the day after a purer ideal—an aspiration to which consideration must be paid. Another indication of the overwhelming interest which has been taken in the Presidential question to the exclusion of all else was that to day for the first time has anything been said upon the subject, and even then not as much as was heard in the convention of 1868. The first reference to the platform was in the opening remarks by Gov Morgan, who said that nothing must be done to interfere with a speedy return to specie payment, which met with applause from perhaps a fifth of the Convention and with no expression of dissent. The suggestion concerning a six years Presidential term was warmly endorsed, but by only a few. Then Pomeroy followed with reference to the course of the Democracy which had prevented this country from taking its place among the solvent nations of the world. After this came the reading of the resolutions of the German meeting held here yesterday, and the addresses of the New York reform club read by Wm Curtis. There was a great desire to hear this well known gentleman and he had to go upon the platform to read the document, which he did most effectively. There was however more interest taken in the man than in the matter. After the speaking was over the committee on permanent organization made its report recommending Edward McPherson, long the clerk of the House of Representatives, for presiding officer. The committee first selected Morton McMichael, of Philadelphia, but he was unwell and unable to preside. Both of them are Blaine men. After the presiding officer had made a few remarks, the convention adjourned until 10 o'clock to morrow morning. The committee on credentials then submitted its report, and the Alabama case will have to be disposed of; then will come the report of the committee on resolutions and then the business of the convention begins in earnest.

PROGRESS MADE IN STEAM PRINTING.

It may not be uninteresting to trace the progress the steam printing press has made under the auspices of the Walters. I have described to the best of my ability the Walter press of to day, and what it can do. I am, fortunately, enabled to tell just what its great forerunner and ancestor could do—the first printing press run by steam, and which, as I have said, was erected in the London Times office by the father of him who is the present proprietor of that world famous journal and the inventor of the Walter press. The Times was first printed by steam power on the 28th of November, 1814, and the issue of the ensuing day, the 29th, contains the following self congratulatory comment on so auspicious an event: "Our journal of this day," says the Times, "presents to the public the practical result of the greatest improvement connected with printing since the discovery of the art itself. The reader now holds in his hands one of the many thousand impressions of the Times newspaper which were taken off last night by a mechanical apparatus. That the magnitude of the invention may be justly appreciated by its effects, we shall inform the public that after the letters are placed by the compositors and inclosed in what is called a form, little more remains for man to do than to attend and watch this unconscious agent in its operations. The machine is then merely supplied with paper; itself places the form, inks it, adjusts the paper to the form newly inked, stamps the sheet, and gives it to the hands of the attendant, at the same time withdrawing the form for a fresh coat of ink, which itself again distributes to meet the ensuing sheet, now advancing for impression; that the whole of these complicated acts is performed with such a velocity and simultaneousness of movement that no less than 1,100 sheets are impressed in one hour." Now, to our advanced ideas, there is something absolutely refreshing in the innocent gush of this statement, "No less than 1,100 sheets are impressed in one hour." Mirabile dictu! And the Walter press of to day can run off seventeen thousand copies an hour, and printed on both sides, too. None of the one-side impressions of fifty eight years ago! The simple summary of the progress then, is in the ratio of 34 000 to 1 100 impressions in one hour. This is not bad work for one man's life time, and is in itself a monument to the energy, enterprise and liberality of the inventor of the Walter press.

THE MUSTANG AT HOME.

The Sacramento Union seems to think that sympathy for the California mustang is so much sentiment wasted. It says: It is possible, indeed probable, that Mr Bergh has no intimate acquaintance with the California mustang, or he would know that his tender consideration was thrown away upon the beast. It has been justly though accidentally observed, that the sympathy of Mr Bergh would have been much more consistently placed upon the unfortunate rider of these mustangs. This is the simple truth. The man who undertakes to ride thirty five California mustangs, jumping from saddle to saddle, must be either a professional vaquero or a petrified post boy of the olden time. But when we contemplate the mustang as an object of compassion and humanity it is impossible to repress a sardonic grin. The army mule is a perfect Chesterfield of an animal in comparison with the native California mustang. It was the mustang that invented the noble art of bucking. We are aware that the army mule has experimented in that direction, but no other animal but the California mustang ever caused his rider to describe a parabolic curve of the same extent. None but the man who has not been bucked by a California mustang at all conceive the process. The victim while undergoing it would infinitely prefer being delivered to an Hyrcanian tiger or a Lernean hydra or a Numidian lion for immediate mastication, and when the operation is completed and by a merciful dispensation of fate he is landed upon the crown of his head in the nearest pile of road metal, with a dislocated spinal column and a pang in every nerve, muscle, sinew and bone, he regards the author of his woes with a horror and detestation far surpassing the emotion evoked by contemplation of the most forbidding antediluvian Saurian Prof Owen ever revived for the satisfaction of the curious. If Mr Bergh had taken it into his benevolent noddle to espouse the cause of the persecuted grizzly or the friendless rattlesnake we could have descried some gleam of reason in his conduct, but the humanitarian who goes out of his way to protect the California mustang is so hopeless an illustration of human depravity that we find it perfectly impossible to do the subject justice.

Smallpox in San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 14—The smallpox, which a week ago seemed dying out, has apparently taken a new lease of life. On Sunday four cases were reported, Monday, one; Tuesday two, and this morning seven, of which five were in one family. All exhibit a mild type of the disease except one Chinaman, who died this morning. The new cases are pretty well scattered around town. No deaths reported except as above mentioned.

The Season's Surplus Wheat.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 14—A prominent grain operator gives the surplus wheat for shipment this season at three quarters of a million short tons, exceeding by 200 000 tons the crop of 1872. The yield is unusually heavy in all parts of the State, and in quality the best ever known in the State. He gives the price for July delivery alongside ship at 90 cents per bushel. He anticipates no difficulty in procuring labor for harvesting, or transportation from the interior unless the bulk of the crop is held until late in the season, which would probably over-tax the railroad facilities. Tonnage here and known to be on the way amounts to four hundred and fifty thousand tons carrying capacity, and enough is expected between now and December to take all offered.

Barley.

The surplus barley is estimated at 75,000 tons at fifty cents alongside the ship.

Store Robbed.

YREKA, June 14—The store of Rumfeldt & Lonig, at Trinity Center was broken into last night and robbed of nearly $400.

Change of Time.

YREKA, June 14—The C. & O Stage Co will commence running on fast summer time to morrow, making the trip to Redding in 21½ hours, and from Redding to Roseburg in 52 hours.

The weather, during the past few days, has been very warm, thermometer ranging as high as 100°.

MISS DICKINSON'S SUCCESS.—The Boston impression of Miss Dickinson's acting differs materially from that given by the New York dramatic critics, one of whom said to a friend before her debut, "I have come to tomahawk Anna Dickinson." The Boston impression, supported by the critics, was that she succeeded but had faults, while the New York critics represented that she failed but had some merits. But however it might have been the first night, her nervousness and tendency to monotone and over-gesticulation disappeared the second night, and an old English actor said she represented her character in one of the most difficult scenes beautifully. The third night, however, according to all accounts, she achieved a remarkable success. It was shown first in her appearance and movement on the stage, where she seemed perfectly at home and mistress of the situation. She had got rid of Ann Dickinson the lecturer and was Anne Boleyn. The absorption of herself in her character was remarkable for a beginner, and that night she showed her real power and had her audience under her influence. At one time she had her audience in tears, and the whole house was melted into a common sentiment of sympathy and admiration. The feeling was more pronounced and deeply enthusiastic than the first night, and an English actress offered the author £1,000 for the exclusive privilege of using the play in England and Australia. As an indication of the feeling among the professionals, we may mention that Miss Dickinson yesterday received five tempting offers of engagements from different managers in large cities, two being from Philadelphia. The remark among Boston theatrical people is that her improvement since her debut is something entirely unprecedented, and that in a short time she will entirely overcome her faults and master the technique of the art, and achieve a really high position among actors in melodrama.—N Y Graphic.

CENTENNIAL COUSINS.—It has been estimated that the million persons who dwell within a circle the radius of which stretches 15 miles from Independence Hall, Philadelphia have in the neighborhood of ten millions of blood relations of whose existence they never before heard until the Centennial Exposition project was broached. The number of decayed family trees that have been rescued from neglect and obscurity, grubbed up and digged about, is a horticultural marvel and a prodigy in archæology. The nearer a family lives to the center of attraction in Fairmount Park, the more highly is it favored with these discoveries of kinsfolk, the larger the house in which it dwells, the greater the number of persons seeking to revive those connections which ceased some generations ago if they ever existed at all. We have heard it said of some Philadelphians of modest lineage but owning good-sized houses, that during the past twelve months they have received invitations to go visiting amongst new found relatives more than sufficient to last them and their children for two life-times.—N Y World.

The Boston Herald says Tilden is the wealthiest of all the candidates. He is put down at $1 000 000 or $5 000 000. Judge Davis is the possessor of more than $1,000,000, and Thurman is very rich. Bayard is well-to do although not a millionaire. Hancock has some property, it is said. Of the Republicans who are prominent candidates, Morton is said to be the poorest, and Blaine is undoubtedly the richest of all. Conkling is possessed of something over $100 000, part of which he, like Blaine, has made in railroad speculations. He is also largely paid by several wealthy corporations. Bristow and Hayes are both well off. The former has probably $100 000 and his wife has received a legacy of $150 000 within a year. Hayes is richer than Bristow.

The Rev Robert Wilson, speaking of the subterranean streams of South Carolina says they are like springs five to eight feet wide, and of unfathomable depth, containing numbers of large bass, pike and perch. Tradition says that an Indian once dived into one hole of Eutaw Springs which gave their name to a revolutionary battle and emerged from another hole. The negroes now a days superstitiously people these springs with water spirits whom they call "Cymbees."

THURSDAY MORNING JUNE 15 1876

THE LAST EFFORT OF THE CONSPIRATORS

Some Democratic politician who speaks very candidly—so the report is—has told a Herald correspondent that some terrific disclosures are to be made about Blaine if he be nominated by the Cincinnati Convention, and the result will undoubtedly be his defeat It is hardly to be feared that anybody in the convention will be influenced by this piece of gasconade which is telegraphed over the country on purpose to defeat for the nomination the man whom the Democrats most fear It will be recollected that, for some time past every one of the numerous failures which the Democratic conspirators at Washington have made in their attacks upon Mr Blaine has been followed by a declaration that in a few days more something was to be brought to light which would blow him sky high, and it will not be forgotten how all these threatening promises have come to naught Heretofore such tactics were resorted to to ease the fall of the conspirators when Blaine struck them down the object now is to frighten and panic the National Convention with the idea that in case Blaine is nominated there will soon be an explosion that will inevitably wreck the party This is the last resort of a set of men who have failed in all other of their desperate endeavors to break down an antagonist whom they cannot hope to defeat in the popular election If the Democratic managers were in possession of facts which would be fatal to Blaine they would be far from making it known now They would hold back the fatal truth, till the Republicans had made Blaine their standard bearer, and then spring the mine Such would be the natural course for them to pursue and certainly they have not shown themselves to have any conscientious scruples about availing themselves of any advantage that may be in their hands This story is manifestly a Democratic invention and a clumsy and stupid invention at that. Should Blaine be nominated to day for President, it is safe to predict that there will be nothing more heard of this tremendous disclosure. The conspirators will get them back to the wretched farce and fraud they have been carrying on under the name of an investigation into Blaine's connection with railway stocks, or else they will drop the whole matter in which they have succeeded thus far only in bringing shame upon themselves

SECRETARY ROBESON'S DEFENSE

The New York Tribune is evidently disposed to deal fairly with the case of Secretary Robeson, but there is a feature in the case which that paper thinks needs explanation. It says his denial of improper transactions with his friends, the Cattells, of New Jersey, is "as strong and as comprehensive as it was possible for him to make it, and he brought forward a number of heads of bureaus and other naval officers to testify that he never gave out contracts, and never interfered with the regular course of the awards Whether the Secretary's statement actually covered the whole case it would be impossible to decide without a closer scrutiny of the accounts and the testimony than we have yet an opportunity of making We are willing to assume that it did, and that there is nothing after all in the suspicious book-keeping of the Cattells which impugns Mr Robeson's integrity But the inquiry will not be satisfactorily closed until it is shown how the Cattells managed to make so much money on other people's contracts They seem to have gone into the business of furnishing naval supplies as soon as their friend Mr Robeson became Secretary and immediately the naval contracts began to pay toll to them Without [illegible] experience they acquired at [illegible] command of the business They had only to let it be known that they thought of bidding, and somebody would offer them a percentage to keep quiet In one case they might be partners of the actual contractor, in another they might make an arrang[illegible] which looked a little like blackmail, though of course it was not that, at all events, money came to them, and it was generally understood that whoever wanted a good thing from the Navy Department must see the Cattells Now it may be taken for granted that naval contractors as a rule, are not fools They are not in the habit of paying percentages and bonuses out of compliment to worthy citizens like the Cattells but for all that they spend they expect—and generally obtain—a full equivalent If the Cattells represented that they had a valuable influence for sale, they must have given some evidence of the truth of their representation If they sold anything it is fair to infer that they delivered the goods or at least satisfied the purchasers of their ability to do so

This morning—the anniversary of the day on which Great Britain formally relinquished all claim to Oregon we publish a poetical tribute to the Oregon pioneers written by one who has witnessed and assisted in the building up of American civilization on the north west coast from the old pioneer days It will be regretted by our pioneer readers that the author has withheld his name from the public as the poem is one which no one need feel any timidity about avowing and many a pioneer would be glad to know who writes thus gracefully upon the theme they love to dwell upon

We rise to a parliamentary inquiry What we wish to ask is whether the delegates from Oregon to the Cincinnati Convention are traveling under aliases The telegraph reported yesterday the name of Jerome [illegible] as the Oregon member of the Committee on Credentials and James [illegible] Telfort as the Oregon member of Platform Committee Nobody here ever heard of these people before This thing of aliases in Oregon politics is becoming monotonous Give us a rest

The New York Times revises its figures on the Cincinnati Convention from day to day as new light is received The latest estimate received from that source gives Blaine 2[illegible] Bristow 110 Conkling 75, Hartranft 58, Hayes 48 Jewell 10, Morton 133 Washburn 1, Unknown [illegible] By to-morrow morning we shall probably know how and how far the Times misses its guess

THE OREGON PIONEER

AN [illegible] BY JAMES [illegible]

I

'Tis November now in Oregon;
The watery wind springs from the south again
The serried clouds come marching darkly on,
Investing mountain [illegible] and spreading [illegible] plain
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]

II

The man [illegible] from Eastern clime
[illegible]
That [illegible] than time
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
And [illegible]
It may be [illegible]

III

But [illegible]
Unto that [illegible]
The patriarch [illegible]
[illegible]
"Secesh [illegible]
No vain [illegible]
But to the [illegible]
Brings all his [illegible]
And gives himself to sweet [illegible] repose

IV

Now housed beneath the [illegible] of his roof
Split from a cedar thirty years ago,
And still [illegible]
He piles the hearth until the rafters glow
The [illegible] fall the [illegible] blow
Full [illegible] to the watery element,
The melting hills into the valleys flow
Unheeding wind or rain he sits content
Where he has seen the storms of three [illegible] winters spent

V

His faithful spouse and numerous progeny
Are gathered with him in his winter's nest
(From James K Polk—their first, full six feet high,
The line by twelve-eleven [illegible] expressed,
Ends with Jo Lane—an infant at the breast)
His spurs and leggings from their peg depend
"Sweet Milk and Peaches" sleeps upon her nest—
By that pet name he fondly calls the friend
Faithful, in times gone by to feed him or defend

VI

But now no more in her he puts his trust
That well tried piece has seen her useful day
The hostile race has vanished into dust
The deer and elk, like it have passed away
And through their haunts his flocks unnumbered stray
No foe to fear, no farther need for game,
Consigned to eating rust and slow decay
Sweet Milk and Peaches, [illegible] earthly fame—
Sheds glory on the past, but on the present shame

VII

His hopeful flock all gathered round the sage
Now opening up the retrospective view,
Instructs them in the hist'ry of that age
When he was young and Oregon was new
His memory freshening as his words pursue,
The theme's as coming as the winter's rain,
And at the stories that he tells be true
That gun—reeking with hecatombs of slain—
An equal never had, nor such will be again

VIII

Nor since the tribal heads of all the Jews
Went first through Canaan's dubious land, to see
What it was, whether fat or lean, and whose
Were ever founders of a colony
Tried like those pioneers of "forty three"
Who, moved by that fierce spirit of unrest
Which scorns to dwell in dull security,
Turned from a land with smiling plenty blest,
To face the unknown dangers of the howling West

IX

Full long he dwells upon that pilgrimage
Through deserts scarcely known to man before
Tells how they marched o'er wastes of sand and sage,
With cracking lips and blistered feet and sore
And of the thirst and hunger which they bore
Nor doth suppress nor gloss those numberless
Heart-burning jealousies, which ate the core
From out the romance of the wilderness,
Where souls of men were tried like vintage by the press

X

Nor found he at his tedious journey's end
Rest from his toils, or surcease of his woes
No brother met to welcome and befriend,
No latch string hung inviting to repose
On every side primeval nature rose
As it was formed And he like Adam stood—
That time he saw the gates of Eden close—
The monarch of a bristling solitude,
As poor in worldly goods and very near as nude

XI

The list'ning flock with growing wonder hear
How the great founders of their institutes
Made clothing from the skins of elk and deer,
And lived upon jerked game and camas roots
"Which," said the sage, "were first rate substitutes
For farmers truck, and all that commerce brings
'Drat them!' the wife [illegible] the [illegible] brutes
Were [illegible] they are [illegible] things
To bind when [illegible] and when [illegible] strings

XII

With all due courtesy to his honored wife,
The patriarch no word of hers gainsays,
But still exhibits that rugged frontier life
Above the customs of these later days.
Though rough they fared and straightened were their ways,
Like brothers dwelt those hardy men of yore
Nor knew those vain distinctions pride will raise
Where commerce heaps up the superfluous store,
Till envy makes what erst were wealth [illegible] mean and poor

XIII

Nor glitt'ring coin or graven rings were there,
For men to wrangle o'er like dogs at meat
None sought to grasp his weaker brother's share,
Or sighed for wealth he could not wear or eat
Then dues were paid in honest pelts and wheat
Nor courts and jails nor bolts and bars were seen,
Where were no rogues to steal and none to cheat,
Nor strifes arose, nor angry feuds between
Those men of old to mar their happiness serene

XIV

Thus each event is told in order due
The place, the date, the actors all assigned
Who started out, who made the journey through,
Who fell upon the way and who resigned
Who came the foremost in and who behind
Whose camp-fire [illegible] first [illegible] smoke
Who the first [illegible] built [illegible]
Whose axe delivered the assaulting stroke
Whose ponderous wooden plow the virgin [illegible] broke

XV

Oft does he pause to draw comparison
Between those days and these [illegible]
To mark how things have changed in Oregon
How selfishness prevails—how [illegible]
Then forward looks and fondly prophesies,
That her fair bosom shall in future nurse
A giant race of men and there shall rise
The proudest empire of [illegible]
Shaming these modern days and [illegible] their source

XVI

But who hath seen a present like the past?
As when the sun [illegible] the western line,
And shall [illegible]
Upon the far [illegible] eastward mountains shine
Unfolding [illegible]
As evening shadows invest [illegible]
Thus when we touch life's [illegible] decline
As one by [illegible]
The past [illegible] looms like mountains all aglow

XVII

What though [illegible]
[illegible]
Time [illegible] for [illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
And [illegible]
[illegible]

XVIII

Wealth [illegible]
And [illegible]
But soul [illegible]
And [illegible]
[illegible] noblest separation [illegible]
It is for the [illegible]
[illegible]
And [illegible]
Who does not thirst to drink [illegible]

XIX

And [illegible]
[illegible] bear [illegible] dark wilderness

[illegible] [illegible] down its rugged way
[illegible] make its hard [illegible] less
Or [illegible] new fields for human happiness
Such are the great to whom the good award
The [illegible] of fame, and e'en the wicked [illegible]
And such the captain [illegible] by the [illegible]
To [illegible] with axe or [illegible] sword

XX

[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
And [illegible] the [illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible] walked the [illegible] even
May [illegible] How [illegible] who [illegible]
And [illegible]

XXI

When [illegible]
The march of human progress [illegible]
[illegible] Westward, ho
And turned [illegible] the setting sun
[illegible]
[illegible] plague or war
[illegible] vanquished and new empires won
Still Westward [illegible]
And [illegible] the West went [illegible]

XXII

Old Egypt's [illegible] that [illegible]
Now [illegible] forth [illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible] and albeurs,
[illegible] of God [illegible] pathway clears
[illegible] beneath the [illegible] and Hun
And nations were led along the rolling years,
Mark where [illegible] centuries have run
The tidal wave of men towards the setting sun

XXIII

'Twas Westward [illegible] Columbus boldly steered
Out from the shadows of impending night
And when the new world in the West appeared
Towards its shores Religion plumed its flight
And [illegible] by day a [illegible] burning light
Which o'er the [illegible] the [illegible] led
From rule of bigotry [illegible]
And for three hundred years whose [illegible] have fled
Still Westward, ho! freedom's triumphant banner sped

XXIV

The wild reclaimed along its pathway bloomed
Proud cities rose, and golden harvests [illegible]
State after State, bright stars [illegible] loomed
In lands but [illegible] the West [illegible]
Though Nature for him smiled and plenty [illegible]
Not [illegible] fill [illegible] craving breast
Still Westward, ho! [illegible] brighter [illegible] dreamed
Until, in forty three [illegible] possessed
Themselves of Oregon and [illegible] up the West,

XXV

The march is [illegible] the banner [illegible]
Their tents are pitched upon earth's final shore,
Where sun in glory walks the Western world
Nor from it sinks until [illegible] restore
Morn to those scenes from whence old Japhet bore
The mystic land of hope and dreams is gone
The wistful eye turns to the West no more
Its charm is dead—its mystery undone
And there abideth "no new thing under the sun

†Attila King of the Huns, was so called

As anticipated the National Convention adjourned yesterday without taking a ballot The speech of Mr McPherson was, for the most part admirable, and the fact that he is an avowed Blaine man lends significance as well to the address as to the fact of his being chosen permanent president of the convention

THE TURF.

Quite a large number of persons were present yesterday afternoon to witness the trotting race which came off over the East Portland race track. Half-past 2 o'clock was the hour set for the race to commence, and promptly at that hour the drivers were ordered to bring out their horses. The race was for a purse of $200, three-fourth mile heats, 3 in 5; first horse $150, second $50. The following horses were entered: Geo. Coggan named Mystery, driven by W. J. Tennant; J. J. Welch named Mollie Welch, driven by Welch; B. B. Lindsey named Parrott, driven by Lindsey. The following gentlemen were chosen judges: George Chamberlain, H. D. Sanborn and John Ladd; time-keepers, P. D. W. Hardenbergh and B. B. Acker. In tossing up for positions, Mystery won the pole, Parrott second and Mollie Welch the outside. The following is the result of the heats:

First heat—Mystery first, Parrott second, Mollie Welch third; time, 2:05.

Second heat—Mystery third, Parrott first, Mollie Welch second; time, 2.

Third Heat—Parrott having won the heat, took the pole, Mollie Welch came next, and Mystery the outside. They came out in the following order: Mystery second, Parrott third, Mollie Welch first; time 2.

Fourth Heat—Mollie Welch took the pole this heat, Mystery coming next, and Parrott on the outside. The horses came out as follows: Mystery third, Parrott second, Mollie Welch first; time, 2.

Fifth Heat—Mollie Welch still held the pole followed by Parrott, Mystery taking his chance on the outside again. Horses came in as followers: Mystery last, Parrott next and Mollie Welch first; time, 1:58.

Following is the summary:

Mystery	1-3-2-3-3
Parrott	2-1-3-2-2
Mollie Welch	3-2-1-1-1

Time, 2:05, 2, 2, 2, 1:58

Mollie Welch having won three straight heats was declared the winner of the race, and awarded the $150 purse. Parrott showing the next best record was awarded the second purse of $50. The decisions of the judges were prompt and according to rule, and gave general satisfaction. Considerable money changed hands, but no expressions of dissatisfaction were heard even by the losers and all must agree that the test of speed was fair, and that there was an entire absence of anything which looked like "jockeying."

FIRE LAST NIGHT.

About one o'clock this morning flames were seen to burst forth suddenly from the wagon shop of Jos. Rohmer, on Main street between First and Front, and before the engines could begin to play had communicated to Mr. Rohmer's blacksmith shop on the east and John Schade's Metropolis Hotel on the west. The fire was kept within bounds on the buildings east though the wagon shop was entirely destroyed, but through the accident to the hose it gained such headway on the hotel that before the firemen could do anything the building was burned to such an extent that it will be almost a total loss. The goods in the buildings were removed, but in such a condition that little will be of future service. The hotel was built a year ago by a Mr. Quackenbush, and about six months ago was purchased by Mr. John Schade, the present occupant. Mr. Schade had insurance to the amount of $3,500 in the Home Mutual. He is an industrious German, and deserves the sympathy of the community. Mr. Rohmer lost but little. The fire was under control when our reporter left, about 2 o'clock. The fire was undoubtedly the work of an incendiary. Mr. Schade was burned out in the Multnomah House, opposite his present location, in the fire of August 2, 1873.

A Western genius has invented a machine for making artificial foliage. He might call it "a patent leav-er." Every leaver for the Centennial should call at Fishel & Roberts and purchase a suit of their fine clothing.

RETURNED.

Dr. Wightman has again returned to this city, where he can be found at his rooms, northeast corner of Stark and Fourth streets. Remember he makes a Specialty of HEMORRHOIDS OR PILES and other DISEASES OF THE RECTUM, giving IMMEDIATE RELIEF AND CURING in a very short time, without interfering with the business of the patient. I use no knife, caustic, ligature or any other painful remedies, having treated many cases of twenty and thirty years' standing with entire satisfaction to the parties treated, I have no hesitation in saying SATISFACTION GUARANTEED. Persons at a distance may consult by mail. The "process" sent by express C. O. D. (not by mail). Consultation fee, $2. Postoffice box, 247, Portland, Oregon.

DR. C. F. WIGHTMAN.

W. L. ADAMS, M. D., A. M., LL. D., corner of First and Salmon streets, is curing the most inveterate chronic diseases of all kinds at a low price, by medicated, electric lightning cream baths, and by combining the German and French with the American improved practice, mixed with a little common sense. His treatment is in the main, entirely original, and works almost miracles, as his numerous patients will attest. A lady always in the office to assist in treating women.

DR. ALDRICH

NOTES FROM SALEM.

Under date of June 14th, our regular correspondent sends the following:

Geo. P. Holman and family were at Stanton, Va., at last accounts, having visited a number of the prominent Southern cities.

The public schools will take vacation during the remainder of the week, to enable teachers and pupils alike to attend the Pioneer reunion.

Jim McCully returned to Salem yesterday, and will remain until after the Portland Centennial exhibition, during which time he will probably participate in the base ball tournament.

Frank Parmenter, of this city, will start for Philadelphia on the next steamer. Dr. E. J. Dawne will assist W. L. Wade, Esq., in the North Salem store during Frank's temporary absence.

We are pleased to announce that Miss Frankie Smith, who on Saturday last was so seriously injured by falling at the Chemeketa Hotel, is slowly improving, and the chances are favorable for her ultimate recovery.

Miss Mary A. McManus, of this city, died Monday evening after a long and severe illness. She was about fifteen years of age, and was universally loved by all who knew her. Her funeral to day was very largely attended.

In response to a general invitation the members and friends of the Presbyterian Church met at the residence of Mrs. A. J. Reily for social concourse, and a general good time was experienced. The house was well filled, and the hostess, with excellent tact, succeeded in making her guests feel entirely at home.

The Dollar Store had a narrow escape from fire last night. While lighting a lamp, some bunting on the north wall ignited, and other goods hanging near were instantaneously wrapped in a sheet of flame. The alarm was given, to which the fire department responded, but Joe Thompson used a bucket of water with judicious care and the flames were extinguished without any great loss, and without the aid of the firemen.

The True Medical Philosophy.

The remarkable cures of Dyspepsia, constipation, general debility, intermittent and remittent fevers, nervousness, mental despondency, and a host of other ailments, by that popular botanic invigorant and alterative, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, prove that to vitalize, not deplete, the sick, is the true medical philosophy. Under the old system patients underwent a course of treatment that often had the effect of exhausting their few remaining energies. Drastic purgation, and the administration of violent remedies with a weakening reaction, were frequently and most unnecessarily resorted to in cases where invigoration combined with mild regulative treatment was the sole desideratum. That this unwise mode of medication has been to a great extent abandoned is in no small degree due to the success which has attended the peerless remedy above named.

Coughs.—A Medicinal Preparation in the form of a lozenge is the most convenient. Brown's Bronchial Troches allay irritation which induces coughing, giving relief in Bronchitis, Hoarseness, Influenza, Consumptive and Asthmatic complaints.

BAY VIEW HOUSE,

BAKER'S BAY, UNITY, W. T.

MR. DEXTER INFORMS THE PUBLIC that his House is now open for the reception of guests. Its advantages in every respect over any other Summer Resort are too well known to Oregon ians to repeat here. To strangers I will say that the place is in plain sight and across the Bay from Astoria, on the sheltered side of Cape Hancock, and very near and adjacent to the Fort and Lighthouse, on Baker's Bay, a beautiful sheet of water, unequaled for Sailing, Rowing, Fishing and Bathing. The dark forest with its picturesque drives, its mountain springs, profusion of wild berries, wild flowers and ferns, the horse trail to the Cape for Equestrians or walkers, is one of the most delightful Panoramas to the eye ever witnessed. The cosy beaches, its caves, luxuriantly wooded Island, its views of Astoria, Chinook, Fort Stevens, moist old Tillamook, in the blue distance.

The courteous hospitality of the officers of the Garrison at the Fort, and also of Mr. Munson and family, of the Lighthouse, make that place well worthy of a visit.

The Salt Water Bathing in the bay, within a few feet of the hotel, excels anything far or near, for warmth of the water and mildness of its waves, far preferable to the heavy surf and cold winds for women, children and invalids, while the sturdy swimmer or those who love the foaming surf, in a few minutes walk will find a beach unsurpassed in beauty, hard and level for one continuous drive of thirty miles. At this end are huge rocks stretching out into the ocean, from which fishers take from the sea Bass, Rockfish, Tom Cod, Porgies, etc., etc. Crabs, Clams, Oysters, &c., in abundance, and the Table will never lack a sufficiency of those desirable adjuncts. Boats upon the Bay, Saddle Ponies for the children, Teams to the Weather Beach, Croquet, Swings, Quoits, etc., FREE to Guests.

Prices reduced from the old tariff.

To those who would like to camp out, wood and water and use of ground free. Groceries, provisions, milk, eggs, butter, etc., for sale at a small profit. Campers can board at the Hotel if they prefer at fair rates. A large Livery Stable, two new and fine Ten Pin Alleys attached to the place.

Stage Office to Oysterville, Postoffice, Wells, Fargo & Co's office also there. No raw winds or damp fogs, and nine beautiful tracts and shady groves cannot be found. The only regret the Landlord has is that his house is not larger, but his grounds are large enough and he is fully enough to warrant next season a Hotel worthy of the surroundings.

GUELDEN'S LAST DRINK

AN ENGINEER'S CONFESSION

I have travelled this road every day of its life—ever since it was laid—in charge of the San Francisco, the prettiest and best engine on the line. It was a northwestern rail running as we will say from A to Z. I had the sweetest little wife in the world and a baby the very image of its pa. I had always a dollar or two to put by for a rainy day, and the boys spoke of me as an old kind of man. To be shut up with an engine watching with all your eyes and heart and soul doesn't make a man talkative, and I never squandered my time spinning yarns and listening to railroad jokes in the roundhouse. My wife's name was Josephine, and I called her "Joe."

I never had belonged to any of the railway clubs or organizations, and never should if it hadn't been for Granby. Granby was a nephew of our division superintendent, and it's a failing with we men of the road that we like to be noticed by the fellows at headquarters, if only to touch the hem of their garments. Granby was a showy fellow, and often rode with me from A to Z. He had a good opinion of me, and as far as I know we were good friends. Once he said to me:

"You ought to belong to the Railway Scientific Club, Guelden."

"Never heard of it," said I.

"We meet once a fortnight," he replied, "and have a jolly good time. We want practical thinking men of your sort, and I'll propose you if you like."

I was fond of such things and I had ideas that I fancied might be worth something. But the engineer doesn't have many nights or days to himself, and the club would have one evening a fortnight from Joe. I said:

"I will ask her; if she likes it, yes."

"Ask who?" he said. "Joe," said I.

"If every man had asked his wife, every man's wife would have said 'Can't spare you, my dear,'" said Granby.

But I made no answer. At home I told Joe. She said:

"I shall miss you, Ned. But you do love such things, and if Granby belongs to it they must be superior men."

So I said yes, and Granby proposed me. Thursday fortnight I went with him to the rooms. The real business of the evening was the supper.

I had always been a temperate man. I did not know what effect wine would have on me. But coming to drink more of it than I had ever done before at the club table I found it put steam on. After so many glasses I wanted to talk, and after so many more I did.

I seemed like somebody else, the words were so ready. My ideas came out and they were listened to. I made sharp hits, and indulged in repartee, told stories, and even came to puns. I heard somebody say, "Granby, by George, that's a man worth having. I thought him dull at first." Yet I knew it was better to keep quiet Ned Guelden, with his ten words an hour, than the wine-made wit I was.

I was sure of it when, three months later, I stumbled upstairs to find Joe waiting for me, with her baby on her breast.

"You have been deceiving me," said Joe. "I suspected it, but wasn't sure. A scientific club couldn't smell like a bar-room."

"Which means that I do," said I.

"And look like one," said Joe, as she looked herself and baby in a spare bed room.

One night I was dressed in my Sunday suit, ready to go to the club, when Joe stood before me.

"Ned," said she, "I never had a fault to find with you before. You've been kind, good and loving, always, but I should be sorry we ever met if you go on in this way. Don't ask what I mean—you know."

"It's only club night," said I.

"It will grow," said she.

Then she put her arms around my neck.

"Ned," said she, "do you think a thing so like a bolted and strapped-down demon as steam is, is fit to put in the hands of a drunken man? And some day, mark my words, not only Thursday night, but all days of the week, will be the same. I have often heard you wonder what the feeling of an engineer, who has about the same as murdered a train full of people, must be, and you'll know it if you don't stop where you are. A steady hand and a clear head have been your blessing all these years; don't throw them away. Now if you don't care for my love, don't ruin your self."

My little Joe! She spoke from her heart, and I bent over and kissed her.

"Don't be afraid, child, I'll never pain you again."

And I meant it, but at 12 o'clock that night I felt that I had forgotten my promise and my resolution.

I couldn't go home to Joe. I made up my mind to sleep on the club sofa, and leave the place for good the next day. Already I felt my brain reel as it had never done before. In an hour I was in a kind of a stupor. It was morning. A waiter stood by to brush my coat. I looked at my watch; I had only five minutes to reach the depot.

Joe's [illegible] came to my mind. Was I fit to take charge of an engine? I was not fit to answer. I ought to have asked some sober man. As it was I only caught my hat and rushed away. I was just in time.

The "San Francisco" glistened in the sun. The cars filled rapidly. I could hear the people talking—bidding each other goodbye and promising to come again. Among them was an old gentleman I knew by sight—one of the shareholders; he was bidding two timid girls adieu.

"Good bye, Kittie; good-bye, Lue," I heard him say. "Don't be nervous. The 'San Francisco' is the safest engine on the line and Guelden the most careful engineer. I would not be afraid to trust every mortal to their keeping. Nothing could happen wrong with the two together."

I said, "We'll get through it somehow, and Joe shall never talk to me again." After all it was easy enough. I reeled as I spoke. I heard the [illegible]. We are off.

Five hours from A to D, five hours back again. I saw a flutter, and never guessed what it was until we had passed the train at the wrong place. Two minutes and we should have had a collision. Somebody told me, and I laughed. I heard the shareholder say respectfully:

"Of course Mr Guelden, you know what you are about?"

Then I was alone, wondering whether I should go faster or slower. I did something and the cars rushed on at a fearful rate. The same man who had spoken to me before was standing near me. I heard the question:

"How many miles an hour are we making?"

I didn't know.

Rattle, rattle, rattle! I was trying to slacken the speed of the San Francisco. I could not think what I should do—was it this or that?—faster or slower? I was playing with the engine like a child!

Suddenly there was a horrible roar—crash! I was thrown somewhere. I was in the water. By a miracle I was sobered and not hurt. I gained the shore and gazed on my work.

The engine was in fragments, the cars in splinters, dead and dying and wounded were strewn around. There were groans and shrieks of despair. The maimed cried out in pain; the uninjured bewailed their dead, and a voice unheard by any other was in my ear whispering "murderer!"

The news had gone to A, and people came thronging down to find their lost ones. Searching for an old man's daughter, I came to a place in the trees and found five bodies dying there all in their night horror—an old woman, a young one, a baby and two small children. Was it fancy—was it part of my anguish?—they looked like—O heaven! they were my wife, my children, all cold and dead!

How had they come on the train? What chance had brought this about? No one could answer. I groaned, I screamed, I clasped my hands, I tore my hair, I gazed on the lovely face of my wife, my children. I called them by name. There was no answer. There never would be.

A whistle! Great God! Onward up the track thundered another train! Its red eyes glared upon me. I threw myself before it. I felt it crush me to atoms!

"His head is extremely hot," said some body.

I opened my eyes and saw my wife.

"How do you feel?" said she. "A little better?"

I was so astonished and rejoiced at the sight of her that I could not speak at first.

"I must be crushed to pieces," said I, "for the train went over me, but I feel no pain."

"There he goes about the train again," said my wife.

Why, I tried to move; there was nothing the matter with me. I was in my room. Opposite to me was a crib in which my child was asleep. My wife and child were safe. Was I delirious, or what could it be?

"Joe," I cried, "tell me what's happened."

"It's 9 o'clock," said Joe. "You came home in such a state from the club that I could not wake you. You were not fit to manage steam and risk people's lives. The San Francisco is half way to A, I suppose, and you have been frightening me half to death with your dreadful talk."

It was only a dream—only an awful dream. But I had lived through it as though it were a reality.

"Is there a Bible in the house?" said I.

"Are we heathens?" asked Joe.

"Give it to me this moment, Joe."

She brought it and I put my hand on it and took the oath (too solemn to be repeated here) that what had happened should never occur again. And if the San Francisco ever comes to grief the verdict will not be as it has been so often, "The engineer was drunk."

VALUABLE LANDS FOR SALE,

600,000 Acres in

EASTERN OREGON!

For Farming and Grazing Purposes.

THESE LANDS ARE SITUATED IN WASCO, Grant and Baker counties and are offered for sale in such sized tracts, not less than 160 acres, as purchasers may desire. Here is afforded a most favorable opportunity to immigrants and settlers seeking homes and low priced land to purchase on the most reasonable terms. The lands are excellent for farming and grazing. On most of the tracts no grubbing or other preparation of the land for plowing is requisite. A growth of nutritious grasses covers the uplands, affording the best of pasture, while in the valleys and bottom lands the grass can be mowed and made into hay. Living springs and streams water the lands in various directions. The uplands or rolling lands can be put into crops with the most satisfactory return. Fruit, particularly peaches, plums, grapes, apples, pears and cherries, as well as the smaller fruits, can be grown in great abundance. The climate of Eastern Oregon is very healthful. Flourishing towns are located at convenient points for trade. The mails are regularly conveyed throughout that section, and a prosperous population is already established, occupied in farming, stock growing, mining, and various other pursuits.

Terms $2 50 per acre and upwards according to quality and quantity. Interest ten per cent on deferred payments.

FOUND IT AT LAST!

THE WALKER WASHER, WHICH IS THE best and cheapest Washing Machine now in use. Its metal frame with extension shaft and its rubbing surface make it superior to any Machine on this market. It can be made to fit any sized wash tub by simply a turn of the hand and is warranted to last five years and do all the washing for a large family.
